AMUSEMENTS.

5TH AVENUE THEATRE,

OLIVER TWIST.—'Miss Davenport had already given a revelation of masspected power by her Impersonation of Buth Tredgett, but even her warmest admirers were unprepared for such a development of genius as that which she presented in Nancy Sikes. The part of Nancy is repulsive, but it is grand, and Miss Davenport merged the repulsive in the grand. She was a type, not an example, she was not Panny Davenport nor Lu Ten export, but the was a woman, loving, fender, true; failen she might be, sons low in the mire and solied with sin, but, failen as she was, the glorious honorable womanhood shone out through it all, and her sunbursts or womaniv nature shous the brighter as they shashed out amid the coarse, black, crimestained associations that surround her. Such a characterization as that she embodied has not been put on the stage this season, and it was specially commendable in forgettuiness of self and in that sublime perfection of art where art becomes nature."—Evening Mail.

nature."—Evening Mail.

OLIVER TWIST.—"Much interest was felt in the appear ance of Bijou Heron as Oliver. The little artists acted the part with quiet unconsciousness of the audience; and we know of no child who could as win the hearts of the audience as she did last night. Her touching melancholy and misjortunes screed by way of contrast to show to hetter a Ivantaze the gay humor of Mr. Lewis Artiul Dodger, who, in the early part of the play, shed binned about the atigs like rays of sunsitine. Mr. Louis James' Bill Sikes was a personation of merit, and Mr. Fisher quife realized the idea of Fagiu."—sun.

OLIVER TWIST.—"Mr. Louis James' Bill Sykes was another surprise to many of the audionee, and was a worthy companion to Miss Davennort's Kaney. In her case the woman nature underlaid and pervaded all; in his, the brute reigned supreme. On the ming, blum, distrusting, orace, hatein ball, he presented a type of the lowest dopth of animal blament, and yet he was more to be pilled than blamed. In dealing with such a characterization we find ourselves looking through the actor at the part and we force this presence in the consemplation of the conception. Such intragase is high praise, but it is deserved, and the like may be and of Bijou Heron's Oliver Twist.—Graphic.
